dency.

The State Convention last evening, by the decisive vote of 137 to 84, resolved to nominate at the last meeting of the Common Council: a candidate for Chief Justice. The Convention then proceeded to vote for a candidate.

November, 1855, Mr. Robert Le Rox of New York, Left at the telegraph office for transmission to Mr. Andrew Drysoro, a fixist in Philadelphia, a message as follows:

1. Roy of Police, and appointment by the Gamman Council 2nd. By the provisions of section 38 of the amendments to the city charter, approved assistant policement by the Mayor and Chief of Police, and appointment by the Common Council 2nd. By the provisions of section 38 of the amendments to the city charter, approved assistant policement by the Common Council 2nd. By the provisions of section 38 of the amendments to the city charter, approved assistant policement by the Common Council 2nd. By the provisions of section 38 of the amendments to the city charter, approved the amendments to the city charter, approved assistant policement by the Mayor and Chief of Police. Bend me for Wednesday evening two hand-bouquets, very handsome, one of five and one of ten dollars. By the time the message reached Philadelphia the word "hand" to the Mayor. was expanded into hundred, Mr. Daynuno of the Mayor.

3rd. On the 14th day of April, 1858, the inquired of Mr. Le Roy by telegraph, "Are the two hundred bouquets intended for pyramids? Are the five and ten dollars for the table or hand?" Mr. L. Pour and the dollars for the table or hand?" Mr. L. Pour and the table or hand?" Mr. L. Pour and the table of the Chief of Police at $1,200, three detective assistants at $500 wach, and the remaining religious at $500 wach, and the remaining religious at $500 wach. amids? Are the five and teh dollars for the wach, and the remaining policemen at $400 table or hand?" Mr. Lu Row answered the each per annum.

Ath. On the 16th April, 1868, two days same evening, "I wrote simply two hand-Ath. On the 16th April, 1808, two days; two days; bouquets for the hand—one at five and the other at ten dollars.? But before this dispatch reached Philadelphia, Mr. Daysurdo had cut and procured flowers for a largo number of bouquets. Some time ago a suit brought against the Telegraph Company to overline, assistant to the order, the Chief of Police appeared at the office of the hand cut and procured from twenty-seven to eighteen men, and on the day following the issue of the order, the Chief of Police appeared at the office of the hand cut are assistant force, and was informed recover damages for this blunder was decided in his favor, but the Company appealed, and now the case is again on trial.

THE LOSS OF THE HUNGARIAN. - The Capada Free Frees attributes the loss of this steamer to, first, the desire to save a few hours' sail which induced the captains to "Lug" the Nova Scotian coast; and, secondly, the anxiety to land the earliest news has Lad to the near approach to the shores of Nova Scotia. The point where the ill-fated Hungarian was lost is at the extreme south-east of the above line of country—a place called 1858. Sable Bay. About this spot the news yacht of the Associated Press, waits to receive the first intelligence of the in-coming steamship's news. A tin cannister, properly segured against the wet, is launched overboard, and is picked up by the boats of the yacht. Had it not been for this unfortunate arrangement, the Hungarian need not have been within an hundred miles of Cape Sable .--With plenty of sea-room, she might have weathered the storm, which, the telegram informs us, lashed the waves must high over the doomed ship.

The stormy Merch is come at last,
With whot, and cloud, and changing akies!
I bear the rushing of the blast,
That through the scowy valley flies.

Ah. passing free are they who speak,
Wild, stormy month in praise of thee:
Yet, though thy winds are loud and bleak,
Thou art a welcome month to me. For thou to northern lands again

The glad and glorious sub dost bring, And thou hast joined the gentle train And wear'st the gentle name of Spring. And, in the reign of blast and storm, Smiles many a long, bright sunny day, When the changed winds are soft and warm, And Heaven puts on the blue of May.

Then sing along the gushing rills, And the full springs, from frost set free, That, brightly leaping down the hills, Are just set out to meet the Ses. The year's departing beauty hides
Of wintry storms the suffer threat;
But in thy sternest fr. wn abides
A look of kindly promise yet.

Thou bring'st the hope of those calm skies, And that soft time of sammy showers. When the wide bloom on earth that lies, Seems of a brighter world than ours.

Opposite the names of the above mentioned persons on the list, the letter R was placed, which was intended to show that placed, which was intended to show that they were reappointed, and opposite the other nine names was placed the letter D, which was intended to show that they were also missed. The list was then taken by the Chief of Police, for the purpose of recording the names of the appointers in a book required to be kept in his office, by the 22d section of the rules and regulations for the government of the police of the city of Milwankee, passed Oct. 22, 1860, and then in force.

above named policemen, and their acceptance and discharge of duties as employees of the city, each of them well understood that the compensation of both the Chief and Assistants had been reduced, and each man also well knew what his monthly pay would amount to. This is made certain by the fact that appointed in April, 1858, pursuant to the the provisions of the amended charter, ap-proved March 27, 1858. 24. Experiments were afterwards made with it, and articles were ignified repeatedly, when held at a distance of six feet from the glass.

Barr, the Rochester nurseryman, and committee recommending the allowance of the claims is also based upon a misapprehen-sion of the facts. They say that there was no proof on the trial of the case of P. W. Dodge against the city, of the discharge and re-appointment of these policemen. Now, whose fault is it, that such proof was not made? The testimony could easily have been obtained by application to the late May-or and Chief of Police, but for reasons test known to those who managed the case the

Madison, Feb. 28—9 P. M.
In the Republican Convention, after the permanent organization, Carl Schurz was chosen as one of the Delegates to the Chicago Convention by real-content. Convention by acclamation, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted. Ing resolution was unanimously adopted.

Resolved, That the delegates elect from this State to the National Convention, to be held at Chicago, be requested to present to that body as the first choice of the people of Wiscomsin for the office of President of the United States, the name of William H. Seward, of New York. That his statemanlike qualities and his long, faithful and eminent public services, his emphasised character, his eloquent and untring advocacy of equal rights and free principles, his devotion to the best interests of the Republic, and his loyality to the Constitution and the Union, point him out as emphatically the man for the times; who will nost surely lead the Republican hosts to victory, and establish upon a permanent basis the assendancy of Respublican principles, and the glory and prosperity of the whole country.

Mr. Ruffin refused to yield the floor for the resolution. He said he had a right to have his name recorded for Mr. Glossenbrenner.

The House ordered the Journal to be so corrected.

CATALON PRINCE

The Wausau Road.—This road, opened by the mail contractors, promises to become exceedingly valuable to the copper range. Several passengers have passed over it during the winter, who rode the whole distance through. Packages of about 100 pounds weight have been brought across. During the past week, some 35 head of cattle reached here which were driven over from lower Wisconsin by Mr. Austin, at an expense of less than $9 per head. This is the first large lot ever driven over in the winter. They occupied nine days in driving from Wausau. During another season it is probable that hay will be cut along the route in quantities sufficient to supply any demand. This will greatly increase the facilities for winter driving.—Lake Superior Miner.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY,-On Monday night about 12 o'clock, some person or persons tried to effect an entrance into the Depot of the La Crosse road: located at this place but failed in the attempt. RUFUS KING, EDITOR. THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 1, 1860.

A Northern Pacific Railroad.

For the Scutinist. A recent editorial article in the SENTINEL justly comments upon the importance and State. consity of a Railroad to the Pacific Ocean, explored on the 47th and 49th parallels from St. Paul vio the Yakima Pass to Scattle, on Pug-t Sound, is 1,875 miles; by the Columhas Valley and Cowlitz river, 2,025 miles; and from Superior 1,878 and 2,038 miles re spectively, on the 41st and 42d parallels, from Council Binfis via South Pass to Benicia, 2,032 miles; on the 38th and 39th parallels from Westport to San Francisco, 2,080 miles; on the 35th paralel from Fort Smith to San Francisco, 2,298 miles; and on the 32d parailel, from Fulton via San Pedro to San Francisco, 2 058 miles.

Thus it will be perceived that even the langest of the Northern routes (150 miles long-r than the Yakima route,) commencing at Superior, is but six hundred miles longer than that commencing at Council Bluffs, forty-two miles shorter than that commence ing at Westport, two hundred and sixty miles shorter than that commencing at Fulton, and, taking the equated distance, it is som- two hundred miles shorter than any other route; while Superior possesses the immense advantage over all these remote interior points of obviating, during the season of navigation, the necessity of further land carries, of avoiding the expensive, uncertain and circuitous navigation of the rivers, and the necessity of further reshipment of goods metil the reach they Atlantic seaboard, or the ports of Europe. Goods can be shipped from Superior to New York, and vice versa, at a cost of from fifty to sixty cents per hundr.d pounds, while the cost of transportation to New York from any of the other interior starting points named, would be but little, if any, less than the whole cost of transportation from the Pacific to either of those points. Length, including the passes of the Cœur d'Aleno, Cascade and Rocky Monntains.

It is not obstructed by deep snow; the average depth at the west end of Lake Superior is less than one foot, and the climate is not as cold as is generally imagined.

Yiewed with reference to the extremes of latitude, touched by the isothermal line, Buperior has a temperature in spring about equal to Milwaukee, in summer to Long Island, in autumn to Northern New York, and a mean temperature but little below that such as the special passes of the court officials and footmen sneared at Napoleon for dating from Schoenand a mean temperature but little below that of Central New York, which is considerably mollished by peculiar climatic influences as we proceed towards the Pacific Ocean. It is dry, salubrious and free from malarious and other epidemic diseases.

It corresponds more nearly that of either of the other parallels proposed with those climates of Northern Europe which have heretofore contributed to the United States one of the greatest elements of wealth and power-its rapidly increasing and most sturdy population; and it is to this parallel, therefore, with its rich, warm soils and hot

The place of such a natural chief was among the first of the land; and that country is best, according to our British notion, at least, where the man of eminence has the best chance of investing his genius and intellect.

If a company of giants were got together, very likely one or two of the mere six-fectsix people might be angry at the incontestable superiority of the very tallest of the party; and so I have heard some London wits, rather peevish at Macaulay's superiority, complain that he occupied too much of the talk, and so forth. They not only speak German, but give French songs, and are said to man, but give French songs, and are said t e very amusing and capital actors.

It is STATED that the Emperor of the French proposes to establish a permanent exhibition of the produce of all nations at the Palais de Pindusrie, in the Champs Elysses, Paris. Specimeus of any kind may there be exhibited and sold, and there will be no limit to the number of cchantillons or

A RICH TREAT to book-collectors, especially those who prize antiquarian literature, will soon be offered in Boston, at the sale of or Percival's library. Not the least interesting thing about it is a large number of autographs of the poet, which will thus be scattered; for he wrote his name on the fly least form relevance and was a isolous.

later years, of those who a many in his him, that he would so not give his autograph in most intimate friends. Of course me was cursed, like all popular authors, with incessant demands for his handwriting. In looking over his MSS. recently, the Boston Traveller's correspondent came across a most impudent example of this, on the part of a young man out West, who sent a note to Percival, inclosing postage, and requesting him to copy one of his more characteristic poems, and having signed his name, to send it out to him. The letter laid among the poet's papers, just as it had been opened, not even the inclosed postage having been taken et's papers, just as it had been opened, not even the inclosed postage having been taken

THE SENTINEL.

Gone in her childleh purity, but from her golden day: Pading away in the light so sweet, Where the silver stars and the aunbeams mee', Paring a path for her silent feet Over the silent way.

Over her bosom tenderly
The pear; white hand are prest;
The lashes be on her checks so thin—
Where the softest blush of the rose hath been,
Stating the blue of her eye within
The pure lids closed in rest. Over the sweet brow lovingly

Gone to steep, with the tender smile Froze on her silent flips. By the farewell kies of her dewy breath, Cold in the clasp of the ancel Deuth—Like the last fair bud of a feeling wright, Whose bloom the whole frost ridge.

TO ONE WOMAN'S HEART.

However the whole party at last concentrated on the Fourth Avenue, before the church with the skeleton steepie, and here, after enjoying a chorus of mirth in various attitudes of beauty, they concluded to adjoint to Cortelyon's and finish upon oysters. It was while sitting in one of the lowes of this saloon, that they were interrupted by the entrance of a man in uniform—a policeman, in fact—who without any introductory remarks, asked if this was the party that came from Mrs. Blodges' Boarding House.

There was no denying it, and he then went on to say that Mrs. Blodges had missed her silver spoons and gold watch and a lew other trifles, which he presumed the party knew all about, and if they would 'fork over,' he thought it would save considerable trouble for 'all hands.'

found, and to the astonishment of all, the spoons and watch, and a pair of bracelets came to light upon the person of Stansbury's friend, and the officer very politely made known his duty, and Stone went away in the war paint to the police station.

"Now then," said Chartsey, "If you will wait I will run up stairs and procure the remainder of this veracious narrative, we can get through with it before Merlin rings her supper tell."

It continued to rain, and Chartsey was absent some time, leaving me alone with the my perception was sharpened, and when he returned with the manuscript I resolved to watch the future interviews with a new interest. Blanche was now a necessity to me. Hartington had not interfered. In fact, nothing had intervened to disturb the delighful interviews so far, and I had grown insensibly to estimate my good fortune too highly. Chartsey finally reappeared with his papera, and disposing his person as comfortably as possible, announced

STEP FIVE. The next morning, as Greenway was sketching an outline of Lake Como on a canvass, he was surprised at the entrance of his friend Hanchet, a detective officer. After the usual salutations, the latter said: "Greenway, Pll bet you a box of Pantel-las that you don't know what brought me

"Exactly," replied Greenway, "and the next question is, whether it is worth knowng."

Linton and Ed. were very much incensed.

Linton and Ed. were very much incensed, and denied very emphatically the accusations. But Greenway acted otherwise. He was not sure but the things might have been taken, and proposed to have the officer search each gentleman separately.

After some little talk this was agreed to by all but the gentleman calling himself Alph Stone. He vowed no man should search him. Nevertheless, a private room was soon found, and to the astonishment of all, the spoons and watch, and a pair of bracelets.

16 continued to rain, and Chartsey was absent some time, leaving me alone with the ladies. I will not divulge what were their opinions of Chartsey's story for fear of prejudicing the reader; but, during that short interim, there was born in my heart a new thought, which expanded with sudden life and threatened to choke out the healthier feelings which had possession. It was jealousy. I thought I had discovered in Chartsey a particular desire to please Bianche. I suddenly wondered why I had never attributed this motive to him before when he appeared so solicitous of her company. There was very little ground for suspicion. But my perception was sharpened, and when he returned with the manuscript I resolved to wholesalo & Rotail,

"Well, is there any connection between this stealer of spoons and the young lady?" asked the artist, turning suddenly about and relinquishing the crayon. "There is some probability of your interesting me, if you keep on."

"So I thought," replied the other. "I think I can put you on a safe track now.—Some time ago there were a number of 'hauls' made on the jobbing firms in Pearl street. I mean," he explained, seeing that Greenway was about to question him, "by hauls, a number of burglaries. It turned out afterwards that these goods were taken off and afterwards sold to respectable men in the city as having been smuggled. Do you understand? A certain Mr. Tanglegrass and Stephenson were duped on this occasion as on many others. But we had no evidence, and so nicely was the whole matter arranged that it was impossible to get even a clue, though there were a number of us that made up our minds as to the truth. The difficulty was to get hold of some straggler who would peach, for you see it was a powerful combination and a great number of 'roughs' were of necessity employed in the working up of the heavy part of the business. We have got hold of that individual in the savage gentleman of last night."

Greenway narrated all that transpired on the evening of the avenue at the statement.
